INTRODUCTION

Etymology

ETYMOLOGY has been briefly defined in this book as 'the origin, formation, and development (of a word)'. Some of the words going back to OE. are as old as time, and are represented in many of the Indo-European languages; acre, for instance, in OE. æcer, has cognates in all the Germanic languages; and can be recognized in Latin ager, Greek agrós, and Sanskrit ájras, which go back to an Indo-European original **agros*, which is based on a root **ag* to drive, do, ACT.

Other words commence their documented life not before the Middle English period, such as Lent, in ME. lenten, which is traced to a West Germanic form cognate with LONG, whilst many others appear in written works much later, or derive from or are compounded with words already long in use, such as handicap (XVII, = 'hand in cap'), landslide (XIX: see LAND).

Acre, Lent, handicap, landslide are native words by descent through a long ancestry of Germanic stock. Other words have come into English from a foreign language such as Greek or Latin, (Old) French or Low Dutch and, later, from many non-Indo-European languages of the East, South, and West.

The forms from which English words are derived, whether by descent or by adoption, are traced to their ultimate source so far as this is known or reasonably to be presumed. Words whose cognates are within the Germanic group of dialects are traced back to the inferred Germanic originals, with mention of any Indo-European collaterals as may be thought expedient. It often happens that a Germanic word is represented in West and North Germanic, but not in Gothic as, e.g., OAK, OE. ác, OHG. eih, ON. eik:—CGerm. (exc. Gothic) **aiks*. Here '(exc. Gothic)' means that no Gothic cognate appears in the extant Gothic fragments, not that the word in question did not exist in Gothic, although that may have been the case, as it seems to be with the West and North Germ. STARK, STRONG, where the notion is expressed in known Gothic by swinþs = ίσχυρός, swinþei = κράτος: similarly, s.v. BREAK<sup>1</sup>, 'CGerm. (exc. ON.) **brekan*'.

For words derived from French, the ultimate source is given where possible, and the same treatment is given to many Latin originals from which the English has directly or mediately been derived. The etymology of Greek words is usually given in detail, as, for instance, under COMET.

Derivation directly from French or from Latin

One of the permanent difficulties that beset the etymologist is to determine whether a word such as evident, which has its counterpart in (O)F. évident as well as in L. ēvident- f. ēvidēns, is to be derived from the French or the Latin. Since literate Englishmen have been acquainted with both French and

INTRODUCTION

Latin throughout the Middle Ages and down to our own times, either channel, or both, could be assumed as the means of entry into English, other things being equal.

This is especially true of the flood of new words of French-Latin form that came into English during the late xvth and the xvith centuries in the wake of the renaissance. The reader will see that '- (O)F. or L.' has been predicated of a very large number of words from this period. In this connexion 'French or Latin' is to be understood as 'French and/or Latin', or even 'French and Latin', according to circumstances.

There was a comparable period during the xivth/xvth centuries when many words were adopted from Latin, especially in translations of scientific and theological works, among which may be mentioned the writings of Trevisa (xiv), Lanfranc (xiv), Arderne (xv), the anonymous translation of Guy de Chauliac's Grande Chirurgie (xv), and the writings of Wyclif (xiv).

For the earlier period, in ME. of the xiiith and xiiiith centuries, the source is more likely to be Anglo-Norman or Old French, and this is often revealed by the earliest spelling of the English adoptions, which point conclusively to their French origin. Liturgical terms and words relating to the Church or to monasticism are likely to have come into English from the 'Anglo-Norman of the cloisters', yet even there the Clerks were conversant with Latin also.

These and other factors have to be taken into consideration, and each word needs to be judged on its own merits, from its form and context. It is hoped that the conclusions arrived at will be as correct as probability and human wit can make them.

Words from Low Dutch

Many words have been adopted into English from Low Dutch, that is from (Middle) Dutch and (Middle) Low German, and that from quite early times, from the xiiiith century at least, since when there has been constant traffic between England and the adjacent Continent. Where the O.E.D. tentatively refers to MDu. and MLG. forms as 'probably' being the source of the English word, or with 'cf.', these words will in the present work be more often found given as the actual source of the English, see e.g., BOWSPRIT (XIII), DECK<sup>1</sup> (XV).

Development of individual words in English

The etymologist might be content to give the earliest recorded date of each word, with its previous history, whether of English or Germanic descent or admitted to citizenship from other languages, thus accounting for their 'origin and formation'. There remains, however, the 'development' of the word, that is, its progressive development in form and sense in English. This is every whit as important, and to many whose interests are the history of words in English rather than their remoter ancestry, the more useful and important function of etymology.

In the present work the development of spelling, pronunciation, and sense has been considered, so far as this does not usurp the functions of lexicography. Thus, under ACRE is explained the source of God's acre, and under LENT is the added information 'the eccl. sense of the word is peculiar to English', whilst MERRY includes a reference to merry England.

The account of individual words includes, where useful or necessary, pronunciation and spelling. Thus under DIE<sup>1</sup> the reader will find 'For the development of die from ME. dēze, cf. dye, eye, high, nigh, thigh', and under JOIST 'The development (of ME. giste) to joist is paralleled by foist, hoist'; s.v. JOLLY, 'Final f was lost as in hasty, tardy'; s.v. HARBINGER, 'The intrusive n occurs xv; cf. celandine; messenger, ostringer, passenger, porringer, scavenger, wharfinger; nightingale; popinjay'; and s.v. ANCIENT<sup>1</sup>, 'The addition of homorganic t to final n (xv) is paralleled in pageant, pheasant, tyrant'. Under MOB<sup>2</sup> we are reminded that it is 'one of a group of shortened forms (as cit, rep, pos, incog.) in Addison's "Spectator"', and comments on the pronunciation and spelling will be found wherever necessary, as, e.g., under ANTHEM and ANTIPODES.

Earlier forms are recorded, as under HIPPOPOTAMUS, 'Earlier forms (from xiv) were ypotam(e), hippotame, ypotamos, -anus, - OF. ypotame'. Contemporary, now obsolete, synonyms are given, as under DIGEST: 'In xvi-xvii disgest, disgestion were also current'.

Words common and current in earlier stages of the language are sometimes replaced by other words. Thus OE. niman (see NIM), which was in general literary use until xv, was replaced by take, which had been in concurrent use since late OE. times, into which it had been taken from ON. 'In OE. the words for "die" were steorfan, sweltan, or wesan dēad.' OE. capellān, from medL. cappellānus, was superseded in early ME. by capelein, from AN., and that by chapelain from Central French (see CHAPLAIN). ACCLIMATIZE (xix) superseded acclimate (xviii) which was a direct adoption from French.

Then there are words which come into political history, the connexion being explained in addition to their more general history. Thus under HOLD<sup>1</sup> reference is made to copy-, free-, lease-, house-, stronghold. Less known words such as floruit are referred to the similar forms habitat, tenet, †tenent. Among many items of more general interest are such as the origin of psychological moment, lushington, quack, tantivy, etc.

Order and arrangement of articles

The word heading each article is printed in bold type, e.g., depose, and any related words which may be grouped under this are printed in the same type; if any of these end in a suffix which is treated in a separate article, this is printed in small capitals, thus depose . . . deposit . . . depository . . . deposition . . . depository<sup>1</sup> . . . depot. References to other articles are printed in small capitals, e.g. under BUSY, 'cf. BUILD; contrast BURY'. These words are arranged in alphabetical order, except when a word is selected to head the article because it best or most conveniently illustrates the etymology of the other words which are associated with it: thus astrologer, astrological are treated under the catchword astrology. The catchword is followed by the pronunciation, the key to which is given below.

INTRODUCTION

After this comes a selection of the senses in order to illustrate the general trend of the sense-development. The meanings are given in their chronological order, which often involves a re-grouping of the uses of the word as given in the Oxford English Dictionary. The century in which any word or sense is first recorded is indicated by roman numerals. Thus, under ESTEEM: A. †value, assess xv (Love); hold in (such-and-such) estimation xvi; B. †judge of xv (Fortescue); account, consider xvi. Similarly under FRANK: †free xiii; bounteous, generous; †of superior quality (see FRANKINCENSE) xv; ingenuous, candid xvi. The semicolon serves to separate a sense, or group of senses, from what precedes or follows: thus in the second example the senses 'free' and 'of superior quality' are obsolete, the other two are not.

For dates earlier than those recorded in the Oxford English Dictionary this work is indebted especially to the published parts (A-F) of the Middle English Dictionary, and for the later period to Craigie and Hulbert's Dictionary of American English and M. M. Mathews's Dictionary of Americanisms, and for Scottish words to Craigie's Dictionary of the Older Scottish Tongue. Some earlier dates have also been obtained from publications of the Early English Text Society and from miscellaneous sources.

Spelling of Germanic words

In Germanic words, long vowels are distinguished by the macron (¯), except in ON., for which the traditional diacritic (˙) has been retained; thus OE., OFris., OS., OHG. hūs, ON. hús HOUSE.

In Germanic inferred forms (g) is employed for the palatal and the voiced guttural spirants, as in **geþan* GIVE, **gōðaz* GOOD. The unvoiced guttural spirant is represented by (χ), as in **doχtēr* DAUGHTER, **χorsam*, -az HORSE. The voiced dental spirant is denoted by the barred d (ð), the unvoiced by the 'thorn' (þ), thus **brūðiz* BRIDE, **brōþar* BROTHER.

In OE. words the voiceless palatal stop, which in manuscripts is written c, is in this work printed č, as in čild CHILD, cyčene KITCHEN, bičce BITCH, similarly after s as in scičeld SHIELD, blyščan BLUSH. The palatal spirant (g) is distinguished as (ǰ), as in gaǰel GALE<sup>1</sup>, ēaǰe EYE, reǰn RAIN, ǰiefan GIVE; after n, and in gemination, as (ǧ), thus swenǧan SWINGE, crinǧan CRINGE; bryǧǧ BRIDGE<sup>1</sup>, byǧǧan BUY (but byǧest, byǧeþ, etc.). The letter g without diacritic is used for both voiced guttural spirant and voiced stop, as in lagu LAW<sup>1</sup>, fugol FOWL; gōd, GOOD.

Dating of Latin words

In Latin words it is important to indicate their age and status, and for this purpose L. is used for words recorded as being in use down to c. A.D. 200, late L. covers the period c. A.D. 200–c. A.D. 600, medL. from then to c. 1500, and modL. after 1500.

PUBLISHERS' NOTE

DR. C. T. ONIONS, whose lifetime of learning this dictionary harvests, died while it was still going through the press. He was the last of the editors of the original Oxford English Dictionary and for many years the doyen unquestioned of English lexicography. The publishers would like to take this last opportunity of saluting the man to whom this etymological dictionary will be an enduring monument.

They also wish to acknowledge the part played in the enterprise by Dr. G. W. S. Friedrichsen, once his collaborator on the Oxford English Dictionary and Mr. R. W. Burchfield who is now editing that dictionary's new Supplement. In 1962 they undertook the task of helping him to see the book through the press. The text was already in galley and some of the earlier sheets were in revise. Although Dr. Onions had decided the main points of policy and drafted nearly all the entries, Dr. Friedrichsen and Mr. Burchfield still had much exacting work to do in the way of reading proof and settling knotty points. The publishers would like to thank both of them for their scrupulous diligence and to thank Dr. Friedrichsen not only for his labours in dealing with the revises but for contributing the Introduction.

The publishers are also indebted to the late Professor D. P. Costello and to Mr. I. P. Foote for verifying the Slavonic forms and Professor Norman Davis for checking the spellings of the Lithuanian words.

A

A, first letter of the alphabet, used in the symbol Ar, applied in Lloyd's Register to ships in first-class condition in respect of hull and stores, A denoting ships new or renewed, 1 and 2 the state of the stores. Hence Ar adj. first-class; in U.S. A No. 1.

a<sup>3</sup> a, ə prefixed to proper names in war-cries rallying men to a leader, e.g. a Warwick. XIV. - (O)F. a to :-L. ad (see AT).

a<sup>4</sup> ə appended to lines 'in burlesque poetry, to lengthen out a syllable, without adding to the sense' (J.), as in And merrily hent the Stile-a . . . Your sad tyres in a Mile-a (Sh. 'Winter's Tale' IV iii 133, 135); prob. originating in ME. inflexional -e; e.g. sonnē/ yronē would be treated as sun-a/ron-a. XVI.

a-<sup>1</sup> ə reduced form of ON prep., occurring in late OE., but not general before XII, and varying in ME. with o; the first el. of many predicative adjs. and advs. arising from phrases consisting of the prep. and a sb., e.g. aback, abed, †aknee, alive, aright, asleep, asunder, away, all of which have OE. antecedents. Early ME. formations directly modelled on these are afire, afoot, aland (in imitation of which were formed later aflame, a-horseback, ashore); some were modelled on or influenced by Scand. expressions, as afloat, alee, aloft, amiss; some depend upon French, as aboard, abroach, across, agog, around, in which the preps. à, en have been assim. to or replaced by the Eng. prefix. In XIII appear formations on adjs. used ellipt. or as sbs., as abroad, ahigh, alow; later are adry, aloud, awry. Partly as a result of analogous formations (e.g. adrift after afloat), partly in consequence of the identity of many vbs. and their allied sbs. (e.g. brood, whence abrood sitting on eggs XIII-XVII), the prefix came to be combined in XVI with a vb.-stem to express the meaning of its present participle, as †alack lacking, agape gaping, asoak, astride; such formations increased in the foll. centuries, esp. in XIX, when many occasional comps. appear, such as a-chatter, adrip, adroop, agasp, agush, a-riot, asmoke, asprawl, awaste.

Some adjs. of a prob. different origin came to be apprehended as comps. of this prefix, e.g. acold (XIV), from OE. ācōlod, pp. of ācōlian become cool.

The analysis of some naut. terms that appear to have this prefix is obscure, e.g. †abackstays, a-burton, a-hull, †aluff (see ALOOF, LUFF), a-trip, a-try; in some of them a- may repr. at, while others may be modelled on abast, athwart.

In some instances the orig. form with on persisted after the comp. had been established, e.g. on side (XIV-XVI) beside ASIDE.

a-<sup>2</sup> ə reduced form of OF prep., as in adown, afresh, akin, †alate (XIV), anew; blended with A-<sup>1</sup> in AFAIR. Cf. †a clock (XV-XVIII), now o'clock. Not in living use since the ME. period. (In comps. with verbs the prefix of- is repr. in ahungered, athirst.)

a-<sup>3</sup> ə prefix of verbs, OE. ā-, orig. ar-, or- = OS. ur-, ar-, OHG. ar-, ir-, ur- (G. er-), Goth. us-, ur-, meaning 'away, out', and hence used as an intensive, as in OE. ābidan ABIDE, ālihtan ALIGHT<sup>1</sup>, ārisan ARISE, āmasod AMAZED, āscamod ASHAMED; āgān AGO. New formations are ACCURSE, AGHAST.

Some scientific formations, as abactinal, aboral (XIX) away from the actual/oral area, have been partly suggested by ABNORMAL. The var. abs- appears in ABSCESS, ABSCOND, ABSTAIN, etc.

'easy to hold, handy'; the later F. sp. hable (mod. habile clever) was reflected in Eng., and similar conditions prevailed to those in ABILITY. Able-bodied (XVII), f. able body (cf. Sh. 'All's Well' IV v 86), perpetuates the gen. obs. sense 'physically strong' (XIV). Hence ably XIV; see -LY<sup>2</sup>.

-able əbl - (O)F. -able - L. -ābilis, produced orig. by the addition of -bilis -BLE to vbs. with *a-*stem, as amāre, amābilis, but extended to vbs. with other stems, e.g. capere, capābilis CAPABLE, and to sbs., as amicābilis AMICABLE, favōrābilis FAVOURABLE, voluptābilis pleasurable. In Rom. this extension went further; so F. concevable CONCEIVABLE, périssable PERISHABLE. Eng. formations on sbs. are actionable (XVI), clubbable (Johnson), pleasurable (XVI), saleable (XVI). The meaning in new formations is now always passive, but the active meaning, always formerly possible, is seen in agreeable, answerable, capable, comfortable, companionable, durable, equable, favourable, serviceable, suitable; in some, e.g. fashionable, both uses were current from the outset, but only the active survives. The wide application of the suffix in Eng. is largely due to assoc. with ABLE, eatable (e.g.) being analysed as eat+able 'able to be eaten'; hence its use in come-at-able (XVII), get-at-able (XVIII). Alternation between -able and -ible occurs; e.g. †feasable and feasible, negligeable and negligible. For phonetic reasons and for ease of recognition the retention of e before -able is necessary in (e.g.) changeable, peaceable, and nameable, saleable; but variation occurs in such words as mov(e)able, siz(e)able. Notable formations are knowledgeable and RELIABLE. The corr. advs. end in -ably əbli.

abnormal æbˈnɔːməl deviating from the ordinary. XIX. refash., after †abnormous (XVIII-XIX) or its source L. abnormis, of earlier †anormal - (O)F. anormal - medL. anormalis, anormalus, resulting from blending of late L. anomalous ANOMALOUS and abnormis; see AB-, NORM, -AL<sup>1</sup>.

It. babuino, Sp. babuino). These forms have been plausibly connected with (O)F. baboue muzzle, grimace, but there are difficulties of chronology; some recognize a base **bab-* grimace, which may be the common source.

babouche babuːʃ Oriental slipper. XVII. - F. babouche = It. babuccia, Sp. babucha - Arab. bābūsh - Pers. pāpōsh, f. pā FOOT + pōsh covering.

The ult. source and connexions are doubtful. ¶ There is close formal correspondence to medL. baccalāria area of plough-land, baccalārius labourer on an estate (which have been plausibly derived from bacca, late form of L. vacca cow), but the sense-development offers serious difficulties. A proposed deriv. from a Celtic **bakalākos* in OIr. bachlach shepherd, peasant (f. bachall staff - L. baculum) is equally unsatisfactory. The later Eng. sp. bachelour, bachelor has been infl. by the suffixes -OUR<sup>1</sup>, -OR<sup>1</sup>; cf. ancestor. In the academic use the medL. form was bacca-lārius, later altered by assoc. (perhaps joc.) with bacca lauri (laurel berry) to baccalaureus (see BACCALAUREATE).

XVI (also bageard XVI, badgerd XVI-XVII). perh. f. BADGE+-ARD, with allusion to the white mark on the animal's forehead (but badgie is not recorded in this sense). Identity in form with (dial.) badger middleman, huckster (XV) has suggested that the latter was the original and that the animal was so named because it hoards corn (which it does not), a supposed analogy being found in F. blaireau badger, which was derived from blé corn, but may be f. OF. bler (prob.) spotted with white. † Earlier names were bouson, brock, and gray.

The earliest exx. in A refer to Sc. usage and suggest alteration of Sc. bauchle (XV) disgrace, of unkn. origin. In B we have perh. a word of different origin rel. in some way to F. bafouer (XVI) 'to hoodwink; to deceive; to besmeare; also to baffle, abuse, reuile, disgrace' (Cotgr.), which is held to be an alteration of OF. beffer (= Sp. befar, It. beffare mock); cf. also F. †beffler (Rabelais) mock, deceive.

baffy bæ:fi kind of golf-club. XIX. f. Sc. baff sb. stroke or vb. strike (of imit. origin; cf. G. baff, Du. baffen) +-y<sup>1</sup>.

bag bæɡ small receptacle of the sack kind. XIII (AnCrR.). The locality of the earliest exx. (from AnCrR., PPl., Promp. Parv.) is consistent with a Scand. origin, but it is not certain that ON. baggi is a native word; similar forms are found in Rom., OF. bague, Pr. bagua baggage (whence medL. bagā sack, chest), but the source of these is not known, nor their relation to WFlem. bagge pannier carried on the back. Hence bag-pipe. XIV (Ch.); prob. tr. LG. sakpipe, Du. †sack-, zakpijpe.

bagatelle bæɡətəl A. trifle XVII; B. table ball-game XIX. - F. - It. bagatella, dim. of (dial.) bagata little property, prob. f. bagā (see BAG, BAGGAGE); formerly in anglicized form bagatel(l) in sense A. Sense B is purely Eng. in origin and use.

The sense of 'rubbish, refuse', which is found in Sp. bagage, leads to that of 'worthless woman', for which there is no need to assume infl. from F. bagasse.

bagno bæˈnjou †Turkish bath; Oriental prison; brothel. XVI. - It. bagno :- L. balneum (whence also F. bain, Sp. baño).

bah bā int. XIX; after F. bah. A synonym, but independent form baw occurs in PPL. (XIV); baw in Goldsmith 'Goodnatured Man' iv ii may, however, repr. F. bah (cf. baugh, baw for F. bât, in bawman BATMAN<sup>2</sup>).

bazaar bazā:ri Oriental market-place XVI; fancy fair XIX. Early forms are bazarro, basar, buzzar(d), basar; prob. - It. - Turk. - Pers. bāzār market, which has passed into various Eastern and Eur. langs.

bdellium de:liam (tree yielding) a gum resin. XVI. - L. bdellium (Pliny, Vulg.) - Gr. bdellion (Dioscorides), used in versions of the O.T. later than LXX to render Heb. b'dhōlah, of uncertain meaning and origin.

be bi, (unstressed) bi. The 'substantive' and 'copulative' verb expressing (i) simple existence, and (ii) existence in a defined state (whence its use with participles as an auxiliary of tense and voice). Conjugational forms: pres. ind. 1st pers. sg. am, 2nd (arch. and dial.) art, beest, 3rd is; pl. are, (arch. and dial.) be; pt. was, pl. were; pres. subj. be, pt. subj. were; pp. been. The forms are derived from four bases as follows.

A. IE. **es-* **s-*. 1st pers. sg. OE. eam, am, WS. eom (with eo after bēo(m)); see below) = ON. em, Goth. im, OIr. am, Lith. esmù, OSl. jesmi, L. sum (for **esem*); infl. by sumus we are), Gr. eimi, Skr. asmi, OPers. amiy, Arm. em, Alb. jam :- IE. **ésmi*.

3rd pers. sg. OE. is = OFris., OS. ist (Du. is), (O)HG., Goth. ist, ON. es (later er), OIr. is, W. ys, L. est, Gr. esti, OSl. jesti, Skr. asti :- IE. **ésti*.

pl. OE. sind, sindon, surviving in ME. till c. 1200 = OFris. send, OS. sind, sindan, OHG. 3rd pl. sint (G. sind), Goth. 3rd pl. sind, OIr. it, OW. int, L. sunt, Gr. eisi (Dor. enti), Skr. sánti :- IE. **sénti*.

pres. subj. OE. sīe, pl. sien, later sī, sīn, surviving till c. 1200 = OS., OHG. sī, sīn (Du. zij, zijen, G. sei, seien) = L. siēm, sīm, sint, Gr. eiēn, etc., Skr. sydt :- IE. *(s)jēm, *(s)jénti.

B. Germ. **ar-* (:- **or-*), of unkn. origin. 2nd pers. sg. OE. eart, pl. aron, earon are; these are old perfect formations.

C. IE. **bheu-* **bhu-*. 1st pers. sg. bēo, earlier biō (:- **biju*) = OFris. bin, OS. biūm, biom (Du. ben), OHG. bin (G. bin), corr. to L. fiō I become (:- **bhwjō*), rel. further to L. fuī I was, futurus FUTURE, Gr. phúein bring forth, cause to grow, éphūn, péphūka I was, phúesthai grow, come into being (see PHYSIC), Lith. būti. OSl. byti (Russ. byt'), OIr. buith, W. bod be, Skr. bhāvati becomes, is, Pers. būd was, būdan be, become, exist. So OE. bist will be, art = OS., OHG. bis(t) (G. bist), OE. bīþ will be, is, corr. to L. fis become, fit becomes; cf. W. bydd will be; OE. bēoþ pl. will be, are, inf. bēon (a new formation on bēo). The orig. meaning of this base is 'grow'; the derived sense 'become' led to its adoption as an appropriate el. in the paradigm of the verb 'to be', esp. for expressing the future; for another sense-development see BOWER<sup>1</sup>, BUILD.

D. IE. **wes-* **wēs-*. OE. inf. wesan = OFris. wesa, OS., OHG. wesan (Du. wezen; G. wesen, surviving as sb.), ON. vesa, vera, Goth. wisan remain, continue, rel. to Skr. vasati dwells, remains. The orig. meaning is 'dwell, remain', and the use of this base is therefore appropriate to the imper. (OE. wes, pl. wesap) and the pt. (OE. 1st and 3rd sg. wæs was, 2nd sg. wære wast, pl. wæron were, in which latter alone it survives).

Of the three types of the pres. ind. pl. in OE., bēoþ, aron, and sind(on), the first continued in gen. ME. as beth, ben, and finally be (surviving till XVII, as in A.V. the powers that be, and in mod. dial.), the second, orig. confined to the Anglian area, had become the standard form by XVI (regularly used by Tindale), and the third became obs. soon after c. 1200. In the pt. ind. the 2nd pers. sg. wære (OE. wære) became obs. in XVI, and new forms, wast, †wertst, and wert, were introduced, the two last esp. for the subjunctive. There was orig. no pp. of the verb am, was, be in OE.; a new formation gebēon, on the inf. bēon, appears c. 1100, which completed the conjugation am-was-been as it now stands.

be- bi prefix, OE. be-, weak var. of bī BY, varying in cognate comps. with bī-, e.g. begān surround, practise, begang and bigeng circuit, practice; = OFris., OS. be-, bī (Du. be-, bij-), OHG. bī-, bī (G. be-, bei-). The main uses, developed from the orig. and gen. sense of 'about', are: (1) with verbs, meaning 'around, all round, on all sides', 'from side to side, to and fro, in all ways', as in OE. besettan BESET, besmierian besmear, bestreowan BESTREW, so bedaub (XVI), besmirch (Sh.); (2) 'thoroughly, soundly, to the full, extremely, excessively', as BESECH (early ME.), after OE. befrignan, etc., passing into a mere intensive as in BEFALL, BEFIT; (3) 'off, away', marking deprivation, as in OE. beheafdan BEHEAD; so bedælan bereave, deprive, beceorfan, besceran cut off; (4) 'about, over' (lit. and fig.) as in OE. begēotan sprinkle, bepencan BETHINK, bewēpan bewail; (5) with sbs. and adjs. 'so as to make what is expressed by them', as becalm (XVI), bedim (XVI), befoul (XIV); hence, 'call by the name of', as be-blockhead, berascal; (6) with sbs. used in an instr. relation, 'surround or envelop with', hence (gen.) 'affect with', as in befog (XVII), benight (XVI); (7) with ppl. adjs., often combining uses 2 and 6 with vague meaning or rhetorical force, as in beblubbered (XVI), bedabbled (Sh.), bemused (Pope), and so, with derogatory implication, in such adjs. as beclouted, beribboned, beturbaned.

beach biʃ (dial.) shingle, pebbles of the seashore; seashore. XVI. Early forms also bache, bayche, baich. The first sense remained in the local usage of Sussex and Kent; it is difficult to determine the date of the emergence of the present sense (see, e.g., Sh. 'Merch. V.' IV i 71, 'Lear' IV vi 17, 'Cor.' v iii 58; cf. the development of F. grève); perh. identical with OE. bæce, bece brook, stream (cf. BECK<sup>1</sup>), with transf. meaning '(pebbly) river valley', a word surviving in many place-names, as Bache, Betchton, Colebatch, Sandbach, Wisbech. Hence bea·ch·co·mber U.S. (1) ocean-roller; (2) settler on a Pacific island XIX; comber breaker (f. COMB vb. in the sense 'roll over as a wave, break with foam').

Beach-la-mar biʃ la mār jargon English used in the Western Pacific. XX (also biche-). Alteration of Pg. bicho do mar BÊCHE-DE-MER.

beacon biːkn †sign, standard OE.; signal-fire; lighthouse. XIV. OE. bēacn sign, portent, ensign = OFris. bēcen, bācen (hence MLG. bāke, LG. bāken, and MDu. bāken, Du. baak), OS. bōkan, OHG. bouhhan (G. bake is from LG.): - WGERM. **baukna* (cf. BECKON), of unkn. origin.

bead bid prayer; (pl.) prayers XIII; rosary (†pair of beads); ornamental perforated object XIV. ME. bede, pl. bedes, partly aphetic of ibede (OE. gebēd prayer, pl. gebēdu), partly generalized from OE. bedhūs house of prayer (whence W. betrus church); rel. sbs. are OFris. bede, OS. beda (Du. bede), gibed, OHG. beta, gibet (G. gebet), Goth. bida; f. CGerm. **bēð*- BID. Hence beadsman, bedesman biːdzmən one who offers prayers for another's welfare. XIII (AncrR.). ME. beode-, bed(e)man, f. BEAD, repl. by beadsman (prob. after almsman) in XVI.

The adopted F. word ousted the native OE. bydel, ME. büdel, bidel = MDu. **bōdel* (Du. beul), OHG. būtil (G. büttel) :- Germ. **budilaz*, f. **bud-*, base of **beuðan*, OE. bēodan (see BID).

beak bik bird's bill XIII; beak-shaped object xv. ME. bec, bek (beck continuing till XVIII; the form with lengthened vowel arose from obl. form beke) - (O)F. bec = Pr. bec, Sp. bico, It. becco :- L. beccu-s (Suetonius), of Celtic origin (but the mod. Celtic words are from Eng. or F.), repl. L. rostrum. In the slang sense of 'magistrate' prob. orig. thieves' cant (cf. harman beck constable XVI).

beaker biːkər open goblet XIV; open-mouthed glass vessel XIX. - ON. bikarr = OS. bikeri, (M)Du. bēker, OHG. behhāri, behhar (G. becher) - pop. L. **bicārium* (whence It. bicchiere), perh. f. Gr. bikos drinking-bowl (cf. medGr. bikion); see PITCHER. The orig. ME. biker (repr. by Sc. bicker bowl, cup) was superseded by bēker, perh. by assoc. with MDu.

beak iron (XVII) see BICKERN.

OE. beam = OFris. bām, OS. bām, boom, (M)Du. boom (see BOOM<sup>2</sup>), OHG. boum (G. baum) :- WGERM. **baumz*; rel. obscurely to Goth. bagms, ON. baðmr tree. The WGERM. forms have been referred to IE. **bhou-* **bheu-* **bhu-* grow (see BE), but the uncertainty whether the orig. sense was 'wooden stem or block' or 'growing tree' makes the ult. origin doubtful. The sense 'beam of light' is found in OE. byrnende bēam, fýren bēam pillar of fire (tr. Vulg.

bean bīn (seed of) leguminous plants Faba (OE.) and Phaseolus (xvi). OE. bēan = MDu. bōne (Du. boon), OHG. bōna (G. bohne), ON. baun :- CGerm. (exc. Goth.) **baunō*; connexion with L. faba bean, OSi. bobū, OPruss. babo, is phonetically improbable. Hence bean-FEAST XIX, whence beano bī'nou orig. printers' colloq.; see -o.

bear<sup>1</sup> bæɹ quadruped of the genus Ursus. OE. bera = MDu. berē (Du. beer), OHG. bero (G. bär) :- WGerm. **bero*; rel. to ON. björn :- **bernuz*; possibly sb. use of an IE. **bheros* brown (Lith. bėras, Lett. bērs) (in stock exchange sl. correl. to BULL<sup>1</sup>). ¶ The earliest IE. name of the bear, **rksos* (Skr. r̥k̥śas, L. ursus, Gr. árktos, W. arh) is not repr. in Germ. or Slav. Hence bear-leader tutor accompanying a young man on travel XVIII; after G. bärenführer, -treiber.

OE. beran (pt. bær, bæron, pp. boren) = OFris. only pp. beren, boren, OS., OHG. beran (in mod.G. only gebären bring forth, OHG. gaberan = OE. geberan, OS. giberan, Goth. gabairan), ON. bera, Goth. bairan, f. Germ. **bher-* :- IE. **bher-*, as in Skr. bhárati, Arm. berem, Gr. phérein, L. ferre (cf. -FEROUS, FERTILE), OIr. berim, W. cymryd (:- **kom|bhrt-*) take, OSi. birati (Russ. brat' take, seize). Since both main groups of meaning are repr. in the IE. langs. it is not certain which was prior. The mod. pt. bore dates from c. 1400, but did not gen. supersede bare (OE. bær) till after 1600; for the pp. see BORN, BORNE.

OE. bēatan (pt. bēot, cf. bēaten) = OHG. bozan (cf. anabōz, mod. amboss ANVIL), ON. bauta :- Germ. **bautan*, the base of which may be rel. to **fu-* of L. confutare strike down, CONFUTE. The OE. pt. bēot, orig. a redupl. form, was repl. first by bēt(t) and later by beated, which gave place to beat; the pp. beaten survives, by the side of a new formation beat (now chiefly dial. or vulgar, and in dead-beat), which superseded bēt(t). Cf.

BEETLE<sup>1</sup>. Hence beat sb. action of beating XVII; course traversed by a watchman, policeman, etc. XVIII.

beat<sup>2</sup> bīt strive against a contrary wind or current at sea. XVII. perh. a use of BEAT<sup>1</sup>; but poss. repr. an earlier **bait* - ON. beita sail, cruise (see BAIT), unless it may be referred to nearly synon. rare OE. bēatan, with noun of action bēating (Alfred's tr. of Boethius xli § 3); but, in either case, the late appearance of the word is a difficulty.

beatific biæti'fik making blessed or happy. The ult. origin and primary sense are uncertain; the Germ. base has been referred to IE. **bhōdh-*, as in L. fodere dig, fossa grave, ditch; but uncertainty as to the priority of the chief Germ. senses, 'sleeping-place' and 'growing-place for plants', invalidates conjecture; for the sense 'bolster' of ON. beðr cf. Finnish patja cushion, bolster, a very early adoption from Germ. Hence be·dsread. c. 1845. orig. U.S. - Du. beddesprei (in LG. bedspread, Efris. beddspreet).

L. bi- (earlier dui- = Gr. di-, Skr. dvi-) twice, doubly, two-, in L. chiefly in adj. formations on sb. stems, as BICEPS, bicolor of two colours, biformis of two forms, bisulcus two-furrowed, also with pp. ending, as bicamerātus (cf. BICAMERAL), biformātus of two forms; in a few, e.g. BIFID, the formation is on a vb.-stem. The prefix appears in Eng. first in adoptions from F., as bigam XIII (cf. BIGAMOUS), later in adoptions or adaptations of L. words, as biforked XVI, BIFURCATE, biformed XVI (L. biformis), bifront two-faced XVI (L. bifrons), bipartite XVI (L. bipartitus); from XVII the L. analogy was widely extended and the prefix used with any adj. to express that a quality or property is doubled or repeated; in mod. scientific terminology forms in -ate, -ated are most freq. employed.

On the model of BIENNIAL, bi-monthly, bi-yearly (XIX) are used for 'occurring every two months/years'; but in U.S.A. formations of this type are used for 'occurring or appearing twice in a —' (otherwise expressed by semi-).

In chem. bi- denotes the presence in a compound of twice the amount of acid, etc. that is indicated by the simple term.

bias bai:əs oblique; sb. oblique line, inclination; adv. xvi. —(O)F. biais = Pr. biais (whence It. biescio), Cat. biax, biaix, referred by Diez to late L. bifacem, -fax looking two ways, f. L. bi- BI- + faciēs FACE, after Gr. διπρόσωπος. Hence bi'as vb. xvii.

(cf. the var. beb xv, surviving in Yorks dial.); preserved in arch. wine-bibber (Prov. xxiii 30, etc.; wyne bebbber, Coverdale, who was a Yorks man). bid bid pt. (in D) bade bæd, beid, (in B) bid; pp. (in D) bidden, (in B and C) bid. A. ask, pray; B. offer; C. announce; D. command. The present forms repr. OE. str. vb. biddan, pt. bæd, bædon, pp. beden ask, entreat, demand = OFris. bidda, bidia, OS. biddian, MDu. bidden, OHG. (G.) bitten, ON. biðja, Goth. biðjan = CGerm. **biðjan*, f. base **bed-*, repr. by OE. gebed, bed|hūs (see BEAD), of which the ultimate connexions are unkn.

The present meanings combine those of this vb. with those of OE. bēodan, pt. bēad, budan, pp. boden offer, proclaim, announce, command, decree = OFris. biada, OS. biodan, (M)Du. bieden, OHG. biotan (G. bieten), ON. bjóða, Goth. biudan, repr. IE. **bheudh-* **bhudh-* (whence Gr. peúthesthai, puthesthai inform oneself, ascertain, and many forms in Aryan, Slavonic, and Celtic). OE. biddan had already acquired the sense 'command', and the similarity of several of the ME. forms of the two vbs. furthered the unification of the two words. The sense 'announce, proclaim' is obs. unless it survives in the phr. bid the banns.

Bidding prayer (xvii), which is now apprehended as meaning 'prayer in which the supplications of the people are asked or enjoined' is a perversion of bidding prayers, bidding of the (common) prayers, of which earlier forms were bidding of the beads, beads bidding (see BEAD), i.e. praying of (the) prayers, the shift of meaning being assisted by the obsolescence of the sense 'pray' of bid.

The origin of the pp. bidden, superseding ME. beden, bēden, is obscure; it reacted upon the pt., producing the var. bid.

bid bi'di chicken, fowl. xvii (Sh.). perh. a use of Biddy, pet-form of Bridget; cf. the dial. use of Betty and Molly for the hedge-sparrow, and Jenny for the wren. See also CHICKABIDDY.

bigot bi-*g*ət †hypocritical or superstitious professor of religion xvi; obstinate adherent of a creed or opinion xvii. - F. bigot (xv), of unkn. origin. Found (xii) as the proper name of a people of S. France, whence it has been referred by some to medL. Visigothi (the Visigoths of the region were Arians); it is used in Wace's 'Roman du Rou' (xii) as an abusive term by French to Normans, and it became a Norman family name. The gap between these early references and the much later use of the word as a common noun has not been bridged. ¶ A story relating the refusal of Rollo of Normandy to kiss the foot of Charles the Simple with the Eng. phr. Nese bi god 'No, by God', and the interpretation of bi god by Charles as the name of Rollo's people, is not credible. Hence bi-gotēD XVII (Evelyn), bi-gotry XVII (Clarendon).

But . . . it seems too firmly fixed in its sound of Cowcumber to be altered, and must be classed with its irregular fellow esculent Asparagus' (Walker, 1798); 'No well-taught person, except of the old school, now says cow-cumber . . . although any other pronunciation . . . would have been pedantic some thirty years ago' (Smart, 1836).

-ed<sup>1</sup> id (d, t; see below) formative of the pp. of weak verbs, in OE. -ed, -ad, -od, -ud, the vowels of which repr. (though not consistently) the thematic vowels characteristic of the class to which the verbs belong, the suffix proper being -d :- CGerm. *-ðaz :- IE. *-tós, repr. by Skr. -tás, Gr. -tós (in verbal adjs.), L. -tus, Lith. -tas. In some OE. verbs, the suffix being added immed. to the base appears as -d, after unvoiced cons. as -t; e.g. seald, pp. of sellan SELL, boht, pp. of byégan BUY. In ME. the several OE. variants were levelled under -ed (-id, -yd); in western areas -et, e.g. icrunet crowned; in north. and Sc. -it, -yt, e.g. lovit beloved; and this -ed is usu. retained in writing, although the pronunc. is normally reduced to d, or, after unvoiced cons., to t, e.g. robed roud, hoped hought. The pronunc. id occurs regularly in ordinary speech only in the endings -ded, -ted, but it is often required elsewhere in verse and survives in the public reading of the Bible and the Liturgy. A few pps., as beloved, blessed, cursed, prominent in religious use, have escaped the tendency to contraction when used as adjs.; and learned as adj. is pronounced lɔːnd, lɔːnt. From the pp., which is lɔːnd, lɔːnt. From xvi to xviii commonly (and later in individual usage) -ed was replaced by -t after a voiceless cons. preceded by another cons. or a short vowel, e.g. jumpt, stept, whipt; this spelling has become universal where a long vowel in the stem has been shortened in the pp., e.g. crept, dealt, kept, knelt, lost, meant, slept, swept. Where there is a shortened and an unshortened form there is a twofold spelling, as in leapt lept, leaped lipt.

In certain other classes of verbs there has been gen. contraction in ME. of -ed which had begun in inflected forms in OE.: -ded, -ted became -d(d), -t(t), as in bled(d) for OE. blēd (see BLEED), set(t) for OE. seted (see SET<sup>1</sup>); after l, n, r, the ending -ded has become -t, as in gilt, girt, sent; in some verbs l, m, n at the end of their stem cause the change of -ed to t, as in burnt, felt, smelt, spilt, unkempt. Several verbs have parallel forms without contraction, sometimes with difference of use, e.g. burned and burnt, leaned and leant, penned and pent, roasted and roast, spoiled and spoilt.

In early ME. wicke and wrecche were given an adjectival appearance by adding -ed, to make wicked, wretched. Exceptional formations on sbs. are crabbed, dogged; †curbed (cursed) may be similarly based on bitch.

In early mod. Eng. certain pps. and other similar forms of foreign origin were extended with -ed to assimilate them to native words of similar function; as †bigot, bigoted; †devote, devoted; †elate, elated; situate, situated; L. and F. pps. were also directly naturalized, as couped, versed. In scientific use there are variants such as falcate and falcated, labiate and labiated, pinnate and pinnated.

-ed<sup>2</sup> id repr. OE. -ede = OS. -ōdi :- Germ. *-ōðja-, and appended to sbs. to form adjs. denoting the possession or the presence of the thing or attribute expressed by the sb., e.g. OE. hōcede hooked (f. hōc), hringede ringed (f. hring). This suffix corresponds in function to the -tus of L. formations like caudātus tailed (f. cauda tail), auritus eared (f. auris ear); it is now added without restriction to a sb. to form an adj. with the sense 'possessing, provided with, characterized by' (something), as in booted, cultured, diseased, honeyed (honied), jaundiced, moneyed, spurred, wooded, and notably in parasynthetic adjs., as dark-eyed, leather-aproned, mealy-mouthed, three-pronged, weak-kneed.

In mod. Eng. and to a large extent in ME. there is no formal distinction between exx.

of this suffix and ppl. adjs. in -ED<sup>1</sup> derived ult. from sbs. through unrecorded vbs. Even in OE. there is variation between -ede, -ed (rare), and -od (-ud), chiefly in parasynthetic comps., as ānēagede one-eyed, blæcfeaxede black-haired, langswēoredede long-necked, rēadstaledede red-stalked, twihēafadede two-headed, twilæppede having two skirts, þribeddede having three beds, þrifōtude three-footed. Suffixed parasynthetic adjs. existed beside forms without a d-suffix (the latter were extended later with -ed, e.g. heardheort, hard-hearted), e.g. hwitlocce, hwitloccede white-haired, twiegece, -ecgede two-edged; other types, with mutation, are repr. by ānhyrnd one-horned, þrihyrne, þrihyrnede three-horned, fēowerfēte four-footed, with which cf. ON. -eygǫr-eyed, -hyrnǫr-horned, which have a ppl. suffix as well as i-mutation.

eddy e:di small whirlpool. xv (Sc. ydy). perh. of Scand. origin; the stem-vowel of ydy corr. to that of ON. iða eddy, whirlpool, which does not, however, account for the terminal -y; in any case, prob. f. base of OE. ed- again, back = OFris. et-, OHG. et(a)-, ON. ið-, rel. to L. et and, Gr. étī yet, Gaulish etic and, Goth. iþ then, but; if of native origin, perh. :- OE. **edwæg*, corr. to MHG. itwæge flood, whirlpool (OE. wæg wave = OFris. wēi, OS., OHG. wāg, G. woge, ON. vágr, Goth. wēgs; cf. -ee<sup>1</sup> i suffix repr. AN. -ee, -e, (OF) -é :- L. -ātus, -ātum, endings (m. and n.) of pps. of vbs. in -āre, as in dēputātus deputy, mandātum command (cf. MAUNDY). It occurs earliest (xv) in legal terms of AN. origin, denoting the recipient of a grant or the like, e.g. feoffee, grantee, lessee, patentee, on the model of which many others were made, most of which cannot be construed as 'direct' passives, but denote the indirect object of vbs.; in payee 'one to whom something is payable' (xviii), there has been a further departure from the original function. Legatee (xvii) is a fresh type, on the model of which donatee was formed (contrast donee). The common correspondence of agent-nouns in -or or -er, e.g. lessor and lessee, obligor and obligee, with nouns in -ee led to the general application of the suffix, as with lover and lovee (Richardson), jester and jestee (Sterne). Many such are nonce-words and remain so; but some, like ad-dressee (De Quincey), are permanent. From xvi certain heraldic adjs., such as nebuly, undy (earlier nebule, unde) have variants with -ee. By mid-xvii -ee had become the regular repr. of F. -é in adopted words; e.g. congee, debauchee, rappee. Later exx. are examinee, illuminee, employee, escapee, in xx internee, evacuee. There are special features in ABSENTEE, COMMITTEE, DEVOTEE, REFUGEE.

-ee<sup>2</sup> i suffix used in a few names of garments, primarily with dim. force, as bootee, coatee, neckatee (of obscure formation), all of xviii, and shirtee (U.S.); also goatee (orig. U.S.), var. goaty, perh. a variation on -ie, -y<sup>6</sup>, as also in goalie goalkeeper, townsee townbred person. ¶ In dungaree, grandee, jamboree, jubilee, marquee, puttee, in Pharisee and Sadducee, in Bengalee, Chinee, Maltee, and Portugee, the source of the el. is different. See -ESE.

eel il fish of the genus Anguilla. OE. æġ = OFris. ēl, OS., OHG. āl (Du., G. aal), ON. all :- CGerm. (exc. Goth.) **ælaz*, of unkn. origin.

F. -ine, as in ratteen xvii (- F. ratine), which was preceded by shagreen xviii (irreg. - F. chagrin), camleteen xviii (- F. camelotine); velveteen (xviii) was modelled on ratteen, sateen (xix) is a modification thereafter of satin, and beaverteen (xix) has -teen from velveteen and sateen.

-eer<sup>1</sup> iəɪ suffix repr. mostly F. -ier :- L. -ārius -ARY (in Sp. -ero, Pg. -eiro; It. -iere is from F.), and denoting 'one who is concerned with, handles, or deals with'. Formal conditions vary from word to word, but in several exx. there were earlier vars. in -er and -ier (which was gen. replaced by -eer in xvii); and two words, charioteer and engineer, go back to ME. antecedents adopted from OF. forms in -eor (mod. -eur). Of the older words those that date from xvi often begin with -er, as mutiner, pioner, scrutiner, but there are instances of -eer as early as xvi, e.g. cannoneer, moyleteer MULETEER. In pamphleteer, privateer, sonneteer (all from xvii) a derogatory or contemptuous notion predominates; these provided a model for such words as crotcheteer, profiteer, racketeer, and more recently blackmarketeer, all of which are formed on words ending in t. There are two words denoting inanimate objects, GAZETTEER and MUFFINEER.

Most of the sbs. have deriv. vbs., which are used particularly in the gerund and prp. (-eering), and some of them, e.g. electioneering, mountaineering, are much commoner than the sbs. to which they belong. In early xix foreigneering appears for 'engaging in foreign matters', modelled on electioneer; hence foreigneer foraniaɪ as a depreciatory var. of foreigner.

-eer<sup>2</sup> iəɪ repr. Du. -eeren - F. inf. ending -er :- L. -āre, in commandeer (xix), domineer (xvi). The obs. pickeer (xvii) pillage, skirmish, scout, flirt, wrangle, seems to be - Du. pickeren pick, spur (- F. piequer), with a strange sense-development; and the form of †fineer (later veneer) points to Du. fineeren refine (gold), veneer (wood).

eriee, eery iə'ri fearful, timid, (now) superstitiously uneasy xiii (Cursor M.); uncanny, weird xviii. Orig. north. Eng. and Sc. eri, ery; derivation from ME. er3, ar3e cowardly, timid (OE. earg) would suit the earliest sense, but the vowel of the stem is not appropriate, and the ending (-ie, -y<sup>1</sup>) would be difficult to account for.

en- en, in (before the sound of k, often passing into ěn) prefix repr. (O)F. en-, which is the form assumed, as also in Pr., Sp., and Pg., by the L. prefix in- (see IN-<sup>1</sup>); before b and p and occas. before m it takes the form EM-<sup>1</sup>, but this was not established in Eng. sp. before XVII, enb-, enp- being more frequent than emb-, emp- in ME., as in OF. and OSP. In OF. and consequently in ME. en-, em- often appears as an-, am-, which last survives in ambush. From an early date IN-<sup>1</sup>, IM-<sup>1</sup> have been substituted for en-, em-, and vice versa, the former being gen. preferred in XVII; in some words, e.g. embed, imbed, encase, incase, enclose, inclose, both are still current, the i-forms esp. in U.S.A.; in others, e.g. imbrue, impair, inquest, im-, in- have replaced em-, en-, where these are historically appropriate; in ensure and insure the variants have been allocated to different meanings. As a living formative (from XIV) en- has been used in senses mainly identical with those of Latin in- (IN-<sup>1</sup>): viz. put in, into, or on (something), as encase, encyst, engarland, enshroud, enthroned, entrain; bring or come into a certain state, as enable, encamp, endanger, endear, enslave, enthrall, enure; with emphatic or neutral force, as enkindle, enlighten, enliven.

en- en, in repr. Gr. en-, the prep. en IN used as prefix, as in enallage, endemic, energy, enthusiasm; before b, m, p, ph it takes the form EM-<sup>2</sup>; before l it becomes el- (as in ellipse).

OE. adjs. formed with this suffix have normally mutation of the stem-vowel, as stānen of stone, f. stān stone, gylden golden, f. gold; these have not survived, but from ME. onwards new adjs. have been extensively formed direct from the sbs., as earthen, golden, silvern (-en is reduced to -n after r). Only a few adjs. (as wheaten, wooden) are in St. Eng. used with lit. meanings, but in s.w. dial. the application to sbs. denoting material is unlimited, as glassen, papern.

-en<sup>4</sup> ən inflexion of the weak declension, ME. reduction of OE. -an, as in oxan oxen, which was extended to other declensions, esp. in the south and west; permanent exx. of this in Standard Eng. are seen in children (pl. of CHILD), brethren (pl. of BROTHER), and in dial. hosen (see HOSE), shoon (see SHOE), housen, treen, etc.

The relation fast adj. | fasten gave a model for such vbs. as darken, deepen, madden, moisten, widen; the extension to sbs. began in late ME., e.g. heighten, lengthen, strengthen; but several such vbs. appear only very late. Some verbs in -en are extensions of earlier forms, e.g. CHASTEN of †chaste, HAPPEN (of hap), HASTEN of haste, HEARTEN of †heart, LISTEN of list; this took place esp. where a distinctively verbal form seemed desirable.

-en<sup>6</sup> ən suffix forming the regular ending of pps. of strong verbs; OE. -en (sometimes with mutation in the stem-syll.), OS., OHG. -an (Du., G. -en), ON. -inn, -enn, Goth. -ans, (once) -ins, repr. See also -ENCY. ¶ The pls. of sbs. in -ence and -ency, sounding alike, tend to be confused, so that (e.g.) excellences is freq. miswritten excellencies.

er ə repr. an inarticulate sound interpolated by a hesitant speaker. XIX.

-er<sup>1</sup> əɪ suffix denoting one who or a thing which has to do with something and so the regular formative for agent-nouns; OE. -ere, earlier -eri, late Nhb. -are, corr. to OFris. -ere, OS. -ari, -iri (Du. -er), OHG. -āri, -ēre (MHG. -ære, G. -er), ON. -ari, earlier also -eri, Goth. -areis :- CGerm. *-arjaz, *-ærjaz, prob. - L. -arius -ARY, of which an accentual var. with ā was perh. evolved. In the early Germ. stage, such a deriv. as Goth. laisareis teacher, from **laisō* LORE, became assoc. with laisjan teach, and was apprehended as its agent-noun; thus the model was provided for the universal application of the suffix to vb.-stems, as bæcere baker, f. bacan, leornere learner, f. leornian, etc. Some Germ. sbs. seem to be directly based on or suggested by L. agent-nouns formed on sbs.: e.g. OE. bocere scribe = OHG. buochari, Goth. bokareis, f. **bōk*-BOOK, after L. librārius copyist, scribe, f. liber book; OS. mulineri, MDu. molenāre (Du. molenaar), OHG. mulināri (G. müller), ON. mylnari, after medL. molinārius miller, f. L. molina MILL; direct formations on sbs. occur in OE., e.g. sangere singer, f. sang SONG, and continued to be made in ME. and later, e.g. docker dweller near docks, worker in a dock, drover driver of cattle, hatter hat-maker (prob. after F. chapelier), slater layer of slates, wheeler wheelwright. OE. -ere finally superseded synon. -a and -end (cf. hunta hunter, čiepa trader, lufigend lover) and its ME. repr. -er(e), -ar(e) became established as the universal suffix for new creations of agent-nouns. At various dates in ME. and later -er was substituted for other suffixes or added superfluously to sbs. of which the endings did not obviously suggest their function; e.g. astrologer, astronomer superseded †astrologien, †astronomien; †alchemister was formed from alchemist; †cater, †fruiter, †huckster, †poulter, †sorcere (in all of which the -er is of alien origin) were extended to caterer, fruiterer, †hucksterer, poulterer, sorcereer; a native example is †upholdster, which became upholsterer; prob. on the model of philosopher, derivs. of Gr.-L. words in -graphus, -logus assumed the forms -GRAPHER, -LOGER; an isolated instance is widower, in which -er provides a masc. counterpart to widow. A var. -ier is established in the occupational names clothier, collier, glazier, grazier, hosier, spurrier, and dial. in drovier, lovier, with -yer after w in bowyer, lawyer, sawyer, †tawyer, whittawyer; see -IER<sup>1</sup>. ¶ For sailor, etc., and such variations as exciter/excitator see -OR<sup>1</sup>.

Some ordinary agent-nouns are found in titles of periodicals: adventurer, idler, rambler, tatler; others in titles of manuals: reader, reciter, (ready) reckoner, writer.

Many agent-nouns, esp. those of occupations, as in other Germ. langs. have a wide currency as surnames, as Baker, Hunter, Miller, Slater, Tiler, Wheeler. Similarly in designations of natives or inhabitants, as Londoner (cf. Du. Londenaar, G. Londoner), Britisher, Tynesider, New Zealander, Icelandic; so inlander, islander; northerner, southerner; cottager, villager; foreigner (prob. after stranger), outlander.

Some personal designations occur esp. as the fixed second el. of comps.; e.g. charcoal-burner, new-comer, money-grubber, lamp- lighter, good-looker, onlooker, ironmonger, self-seeker, backslider, caretaker.

Many formations are applied almost exclusively to inanimate objects, particularly to instruments or implements used in specific operations, as amplifier, blotter, boiler, burner, buzzer, cracker, cutter, decanter, dredger, duster, girder, growler (cab), hopper, knocker, lighter, pointer, poker, propeller, reaper-and-binder, *rocke*r, roller, runner, steamer, stopper, strainer, stretcher, winder; (in pl. form mainly) clippers, dividers, pincers, tweezers (cf. scissors); of diverse origin are kneeler pad for kneeling on, locker chest that locks up, liner steamer of a line, revolver 'revolving pistol'; articles of clothing are blazer, boater, junper, pinner, reefer 'reefing jacket', slipper, stomacher, sweater; pl. drawers, trousers; U.S. diner, sleepers are for 'dining'/'sleeping compartment'; having non-material reference are appetizer, feeler, poser, reminder. There are many colloq. and sl. formations in which -er expresses 'one', as backhander, blighter, deader, forty-niner, goner, last-ditcher, napper, out-and-outer, peasouper, penny-a-liner, six-footer, sundowner, teen-ager, ten-tonner, three-decker, topper, whole-hogger; lifer life-sentence; oner one who is 'a one'; so fixer/tenner £5-/£10-note. Akin to these are derogatory terms like blighter, bounder, rotter, soaker, and terms denoting an uncommonly large specimen, a heavy fall or blow, or a big lie (some have the twofold application), as banger, cropper, *fac*er, header, heeler, mucker, muzzler, and smeller (blow on the nose), purler, stinger, stunner (stunning blow, 'stunning' person or thing), whopper. The sp. -ar survives in beggar, liar, pedlar. ¶ Other suffixes disguised under the form -er are found in border, bracer, counter, dresser, laver, and others.

-er<sup>2</sup> α1 repr., in adoptions from French, (i) OF. -er :- L. -ari-s -AR, or (ii) AN. -er, OF. -ier :- L. -ariu-s, -ariu-m -ARY, used sb. Some ME. exx. in -er have been refash. with -ar after Latin, as (i) ME. scoler (- AN. escoler, OF. escolier) SCHOLAR; so TEMPLAR; (ii) ME. coler (- AN. coler, OF. colier) COLLAR; so CELLAR, POPLAR. Where the L. suffix is the m. -arius, the word has usu. the sense 'person connected with', as archer, banker, butcher, butler, carpenter, draper, fletcher, gaoler, gardener, grocer, mariner, officer, verger (so also a few ME. adoptions of OF. sbs. in -iere, viz. chamberer, lavender); where the L. suffix is n. -arium, the sense is 'thing connected with', 'receptacle for', as antiphoner, censer, corner, danger, garner, primer. See also -IER, -OR<sup>2</sup>.

-er<sup>3</sup> α1 suffix of compar. adjs. and advs. A. In adjs., ME. -er(e), -re (occas. vars. -ore, -ure), from OE. -ra m., -re fem., n., repr. two Germ. suffixes, (i) *-izon- (OS., OHG. -iro, ON. -ri, Goth. -iza, accompanied by mutation) and (ii) *-ōzon- (OHG. -ōro, ON. -ari, Goth. -ōza), which were formed on the advb. suffixes *-iz, *-ōz (see below). Mutation was retained in a few OE. compar., as strang strong, strengra, sceort short, sýrtra; traces persist in better :- **batizon*- and elder :- **aldizon*-; worse and less contain the suffix *-izon- in a disguised form. B. In advs., OE. -or = OS., OHG. -ör, Goth. -ōz :- CGerm. *-ōz, beside which there was *-iz (corr. to L. -is, as in magis more, nimis too much, and cogn. with -ior of L. compar. adjs.), repr. by ON. -r (with mutation) and Goth. -is (e.g. hauhis higher), and by the mutation in OE. compar. like leng longer :- **langiz*, bet better :- **batiz*, which were superseded in ME. by regular forms in -er. The advs. that take a compar. in -er (as distinct from those that take more) are mostly those that are identical with their adjs., e.g. harder, close, tighter; exceptions are seldomer, oftener, sooner; advs. in -LY<sup>2</sup> normally take more, but the older use, which admitted forms like easylier, survives in poet. usage, as in keenlier (Tennyson).

-er<sup>4</sup> aɪ suffix forming iterative and frequent. vbs.; OE. (-erian) = OFris. -ria, OS. -arōn, MLG., MDu. -eren, OHG. -arōn, -irōn (G. -ern), ON. -ra :- CGerm. (exc. SWITHER), wandrian WANDER; to some there are corr. adjs., as gliddrian slip, beside gliddor, slidrian SLITHER, beside sliddor. The number of such words was greatly increased in ME. and later, partly by analogous formations of an echoic or symbolic kind (sometimes from native bases), partly by direct adoption or assimilation of ON. or LG. verbs; e.g. blunder, bluster, chatter, clamber, fluster, glimmer, glitter, jabber, mutter, patter, pucker, quaver, quiver, shiver, shudder, snigger, stagger, stutter, swagger, titter, totter, waver.

-er<sup>5</sup> əɪ ending (-er :- L. -āre) of a number of AN. infins. (= OF. -er, -ir, -eir, or -re), used orig. as sbs. in legal language, mostly of XV or XVI; viz. cesser, demurrer, detainer, disclaimer, misnomer, non-user, remitter, retainer, trover, user, waiver; attainder, †detainder, (sur)rejoinder, remainder; tender; the same ending is in dinner and supper.

-er<sup>6</sup> əɪ suffix (prob. an extended vague application of -ER<sup>3</sup>) used in Eng. public-school and university sl. formations made by adding it to the first syll. or early sylls. of a word, which are themselves sometimes deformed; e.g. bedder bedroom, bedsitter bed-sitting room, cupper cup-tie (match), Divvers Divinity Moderations, ekker exercise, footer football, freshier freshman, Radder Radcliffe Camera (Oxford), rugger | soccer Rugby | Association football, Toggers Torpids (boat-races), Tosher unattached student (at Oxford); Adders Addison's Walk (Magdalen College, Oxford); there have been casual or transitory uses such as wagger pagger bagger waste-paper basket.

Such comps. came to be apprehended as directly rel. to the ult. base, as chevalerie to cheval horse; consequently, formations on various kinds of sb. were made, e.g. diablerie devilry on diable devil, imagerie IMAGERY on image, juiverie JEWRY on juif Jew, loterie LOTTERY on lot; this was extended to adjs., as effronterie EFFRONTERY on effronté, sauvagerie SAVAGERY, and to vbs. as batterie BATTERY on battre; and the practice was followed in Eng. formations, as deanery, drudgery, gunnery, slavery, thievery. In some cases it is transferred to the place of manufacture, e.g. The Potteries (see POT-TERY), on the model of which The Dukeries has been applied to an area of Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire containing several ducal seats. The title of the Fisheries Exhibition of 1883 led to a colloq. use of Healtheries for the later Health Exhibition and of Colinderies for the Colonial and Indian Exhibition.
